Hello Jack,

I just talked to you on the phone. I am interesting in a few sample clubs for an initial order, maybe two different Cleveland clubs and one Titelist. If the clubs look good I would like to set up large bulk orders in the future. Do you have a product list available?

Thank you,

counterfeit

original

The engraving of the "Cleveland" does not match. Notably in the inside curvature of the "C" and the thickness of the engraving line.

counterfeit

original

Shape and size of the "CG" bug engraving is different.

counterfeit

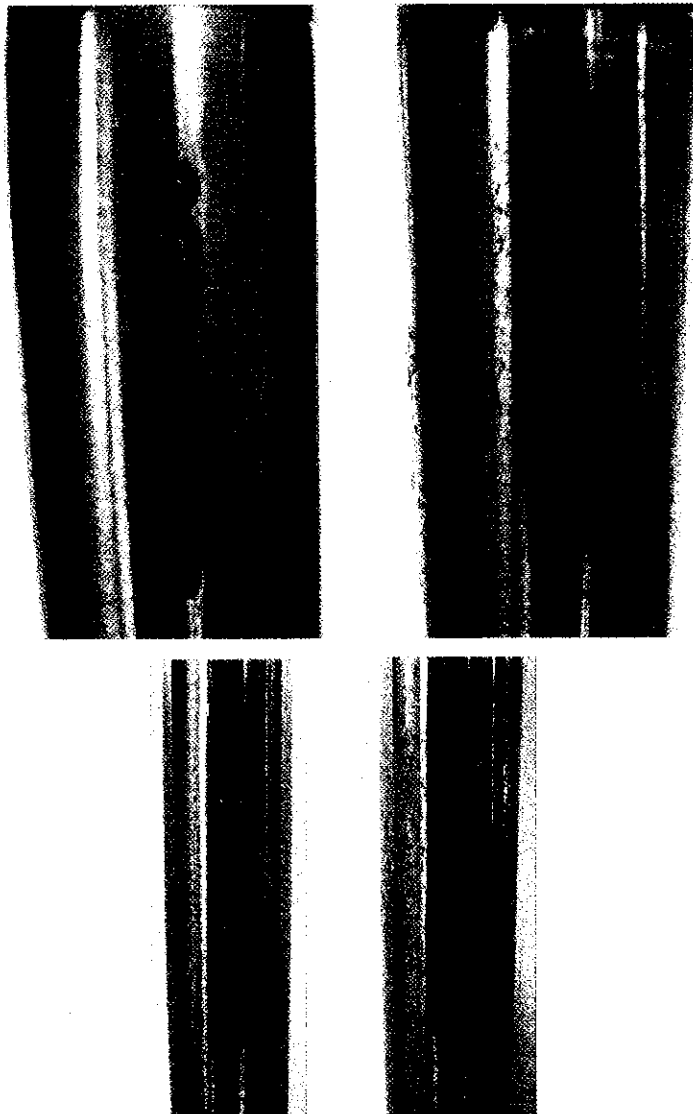

original

Font of "588DSG" does not match. Noted especially in the "DSG"

counterfeit

original

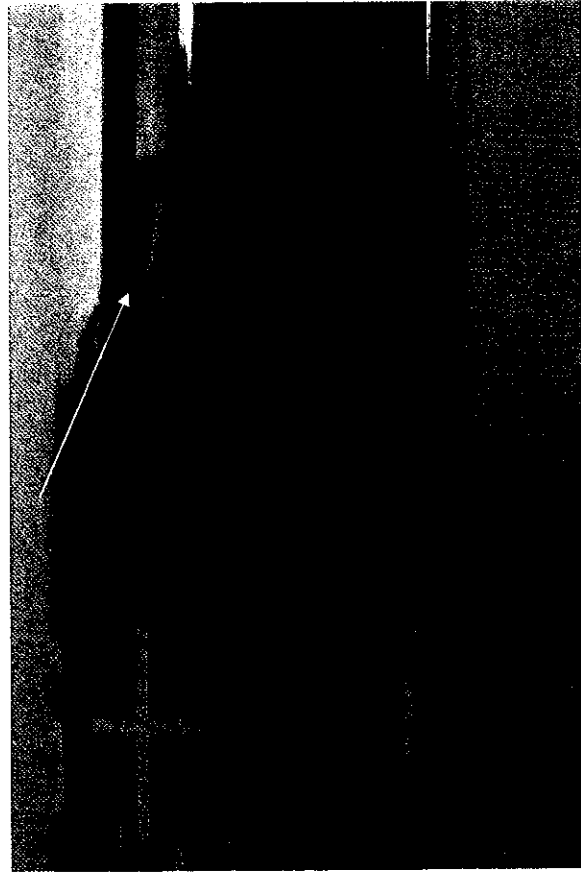

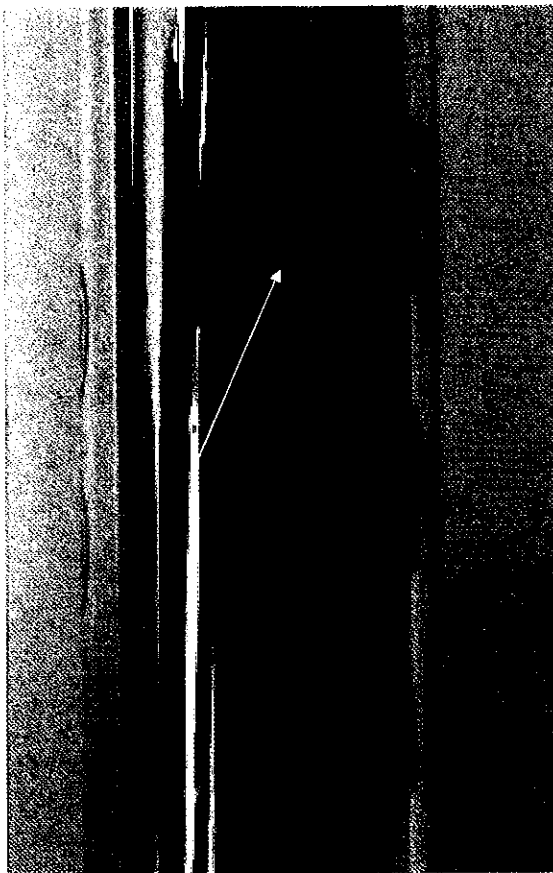

•“RTG+” font does not match. Noted mainly in the “G” and “+”

•The inside surfaces of the engraving should be the same color as the oil can finish of the rest of the wedge. The counterfeit engraving looks as though there is a dark colored paint or something inside making it darker than the oil can color.

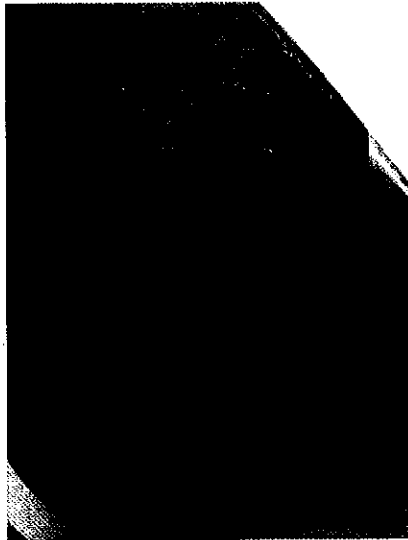

counterfeit

original

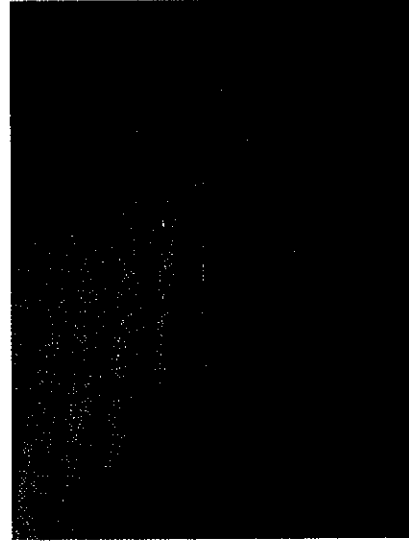

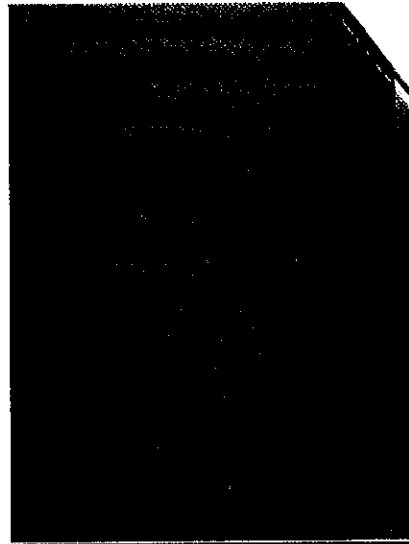

The "TT" silkscreen does not match

counterfeit

original

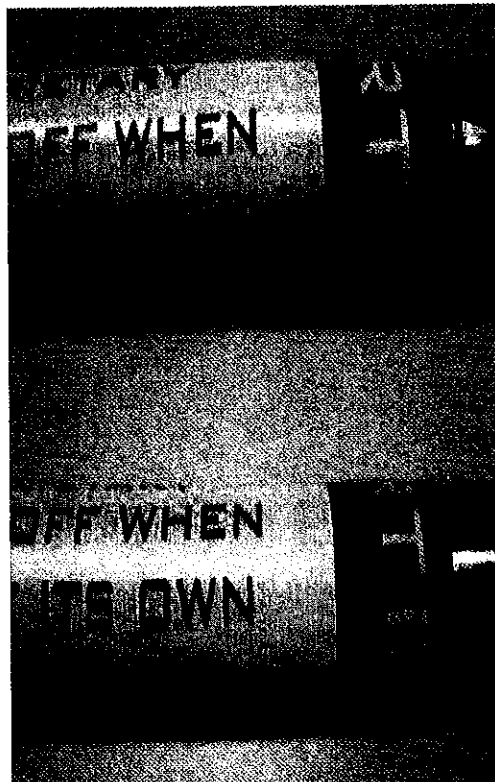

Cosmetic of the face sandblast does not match. A different medium must have been used. The counterfeit sandblast has a "flatter" look to it, while the original sandblast has a sheen and fleck to it.

counterfeit

original

original

counterfeit

The label material/finish does not match. The original has a clear glossy finish which can be noticed by the shiny highlight, whereas the counterfeit label has more of a satin or matte finish.

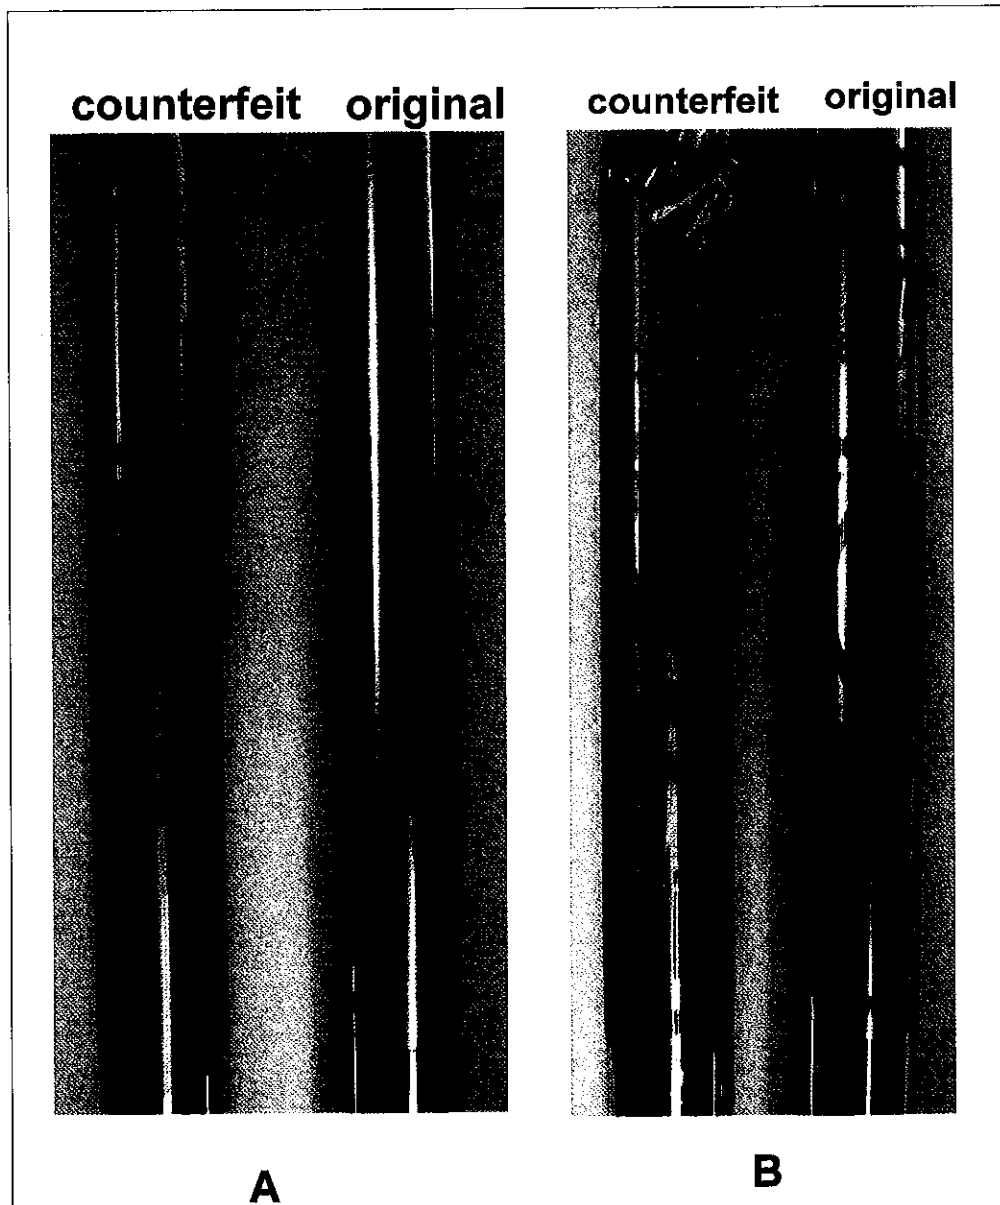

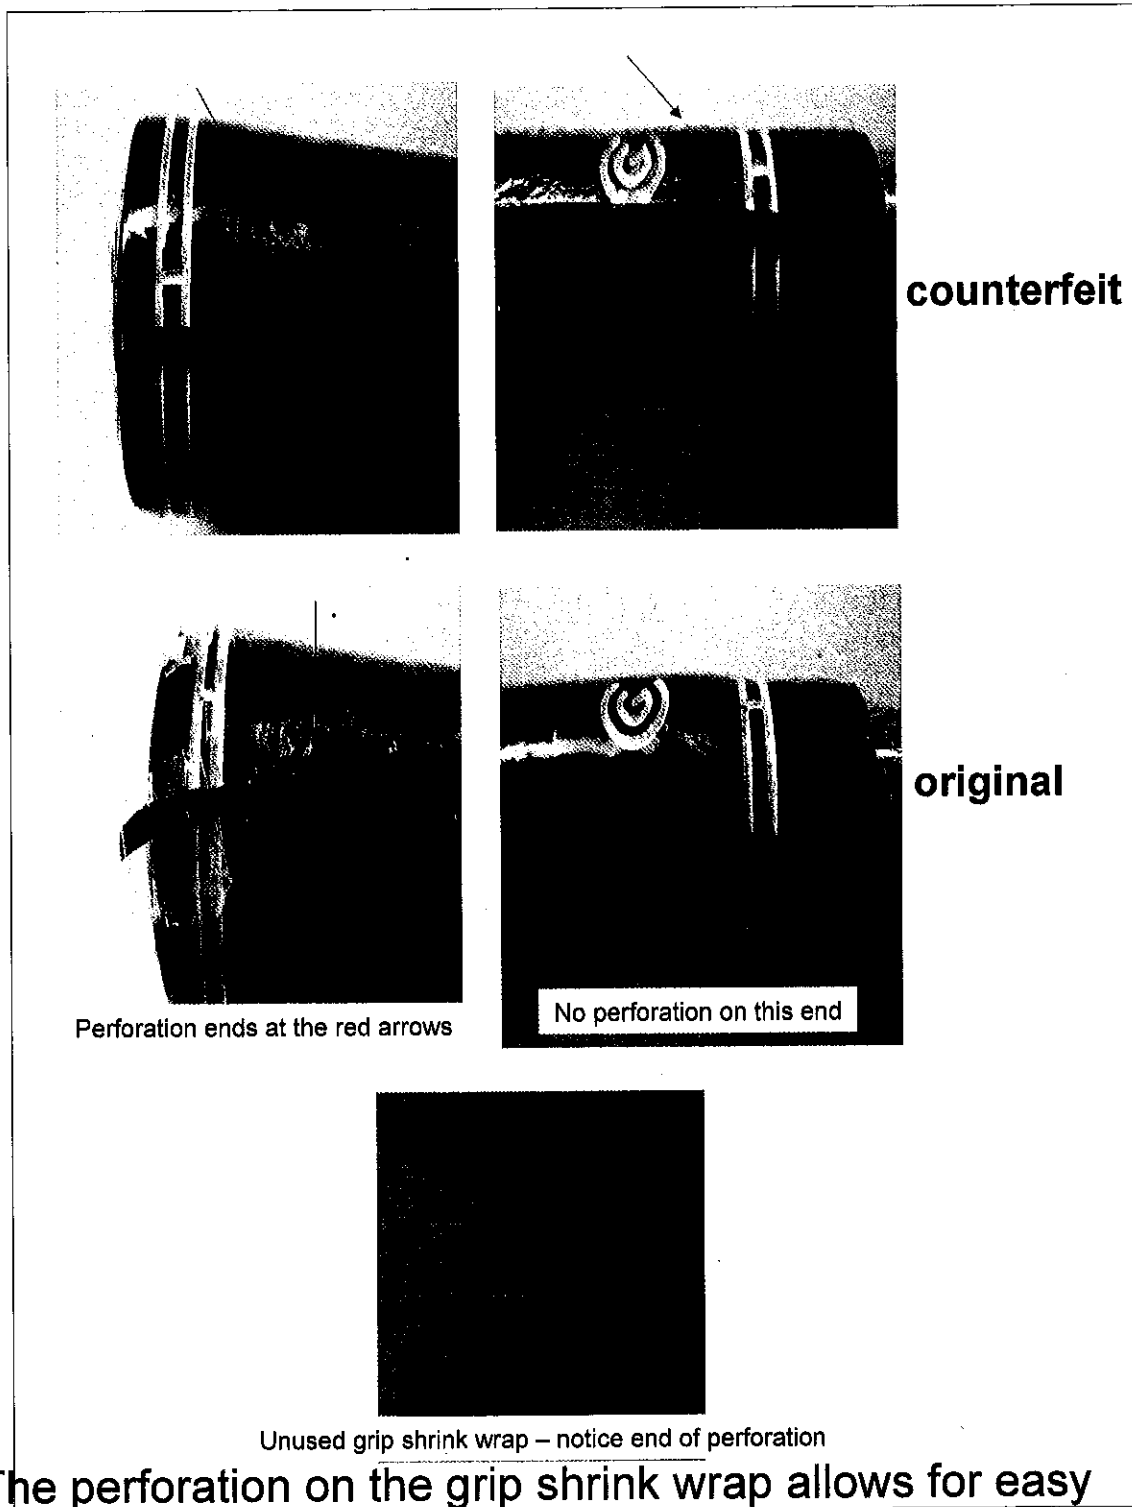

Exhibit A: the font of the “wedge flex” does not match in font style and line thickness of the text. The color of the counterfeit label has a darker, copper tone than the brighter gold one of the original. The horizontal brush marks of the label material are also more pronounced on the original than the counterfeit.

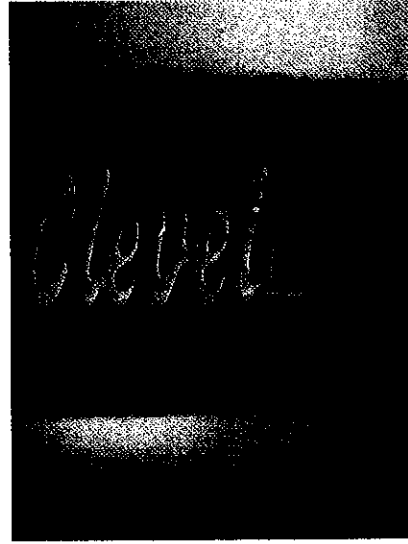

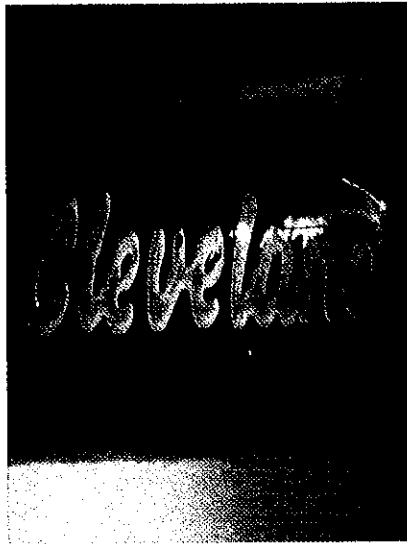

Exhibit B: The CG bug logo does not match in addition to the “MADE IN USA”.

The perforation on the grip shrink wrap allows for easy removal. However, the original perforation on the original shrink wrap stops after a short distance from the butt end of the grip. The counterfeit shrink wrap shows the perforation continues all the way down to the tip end of the grip.

counterfeit

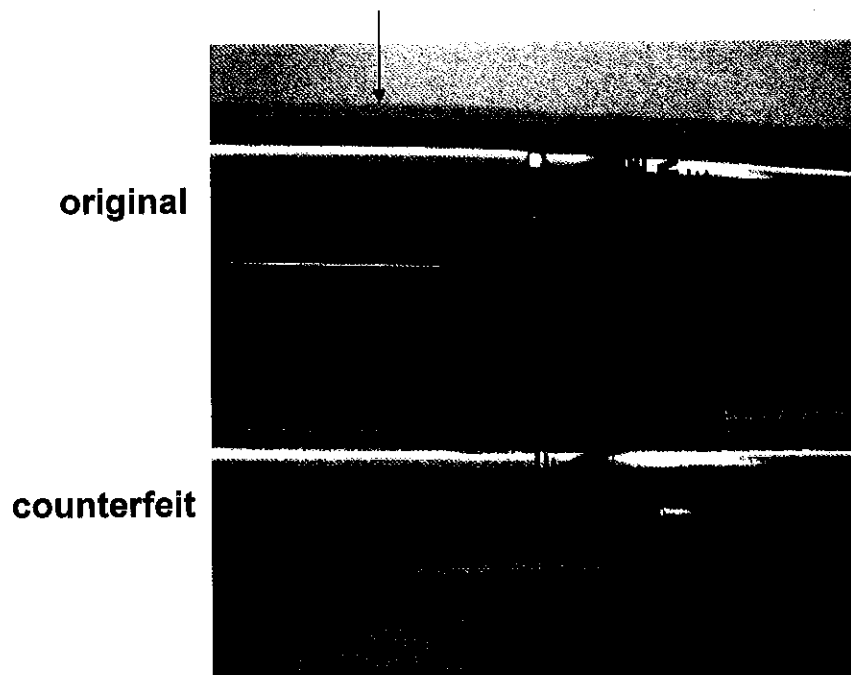

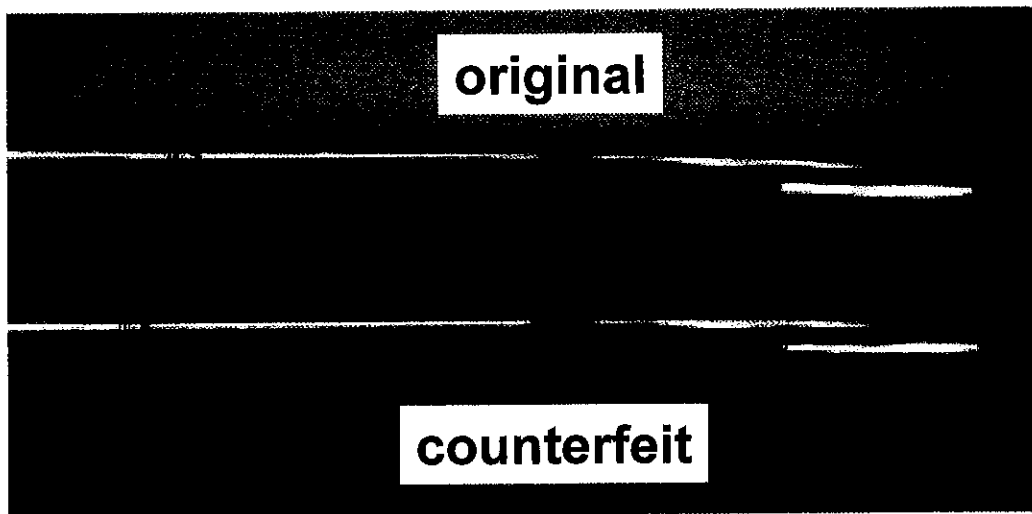

original

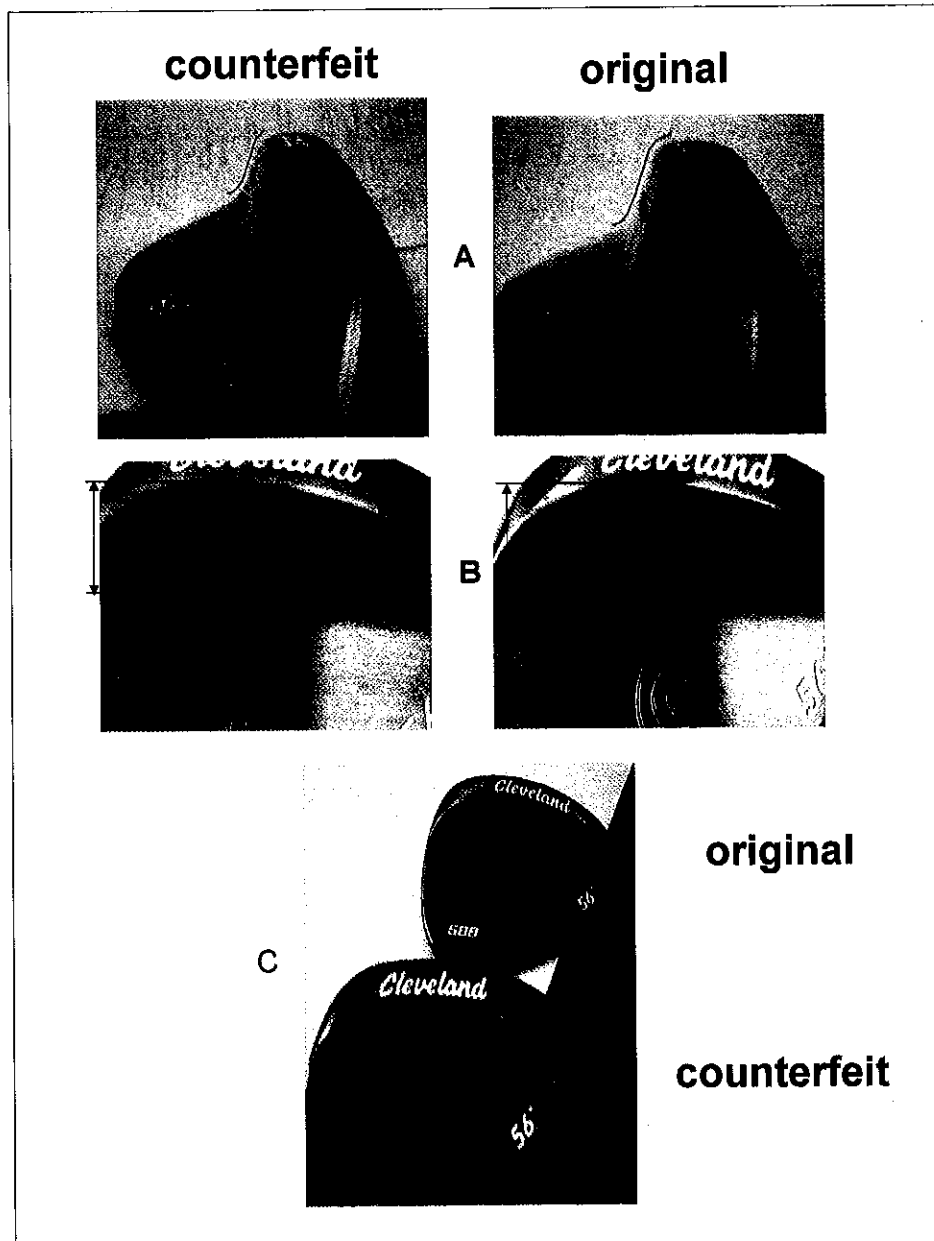

original

The line width of the Cleveland logo on the grip does not match and the paintfill quality is very poor.

Wedge shafts are tapered tip, which means during assembly the tip end is not cut but gets directly inserted into the head. This in turn means that the step pattern from the tip end of the shaft should match up regardless of what loft of wedge is being built. Here I have lined up two of the exact same wedge (notice the ferrules line up) and one can see the first step does not line up. The bottom picture is an up close view of the first step and their misalignment. This proves the shaft itself is counterfeit.

The back flange/muscle does not match.

Exhibit A shows the higher and steeper transition from the sole to the back flange.

Exhibit B shows the heights of the back do not match.

Exhibit C shows both 56° wedges in which you can easily notice the definition and height of the back flange on the original compared to the counterfeit which is flatter and shorter.
